Although English has become the twentieth century's leading commercial and diplomatic language, modern language study will be of increasing importance in the years ahead. As technology continues to conquer the obstacles of time and space, the outlook is for even greater travel, commerce, and cultural exchange between the Upper Midwest and the rest of the world.

Although Minnesota State University, Mankato does not offer a degree in Russian, students may register for Russian courses. These courses are offered at Gustavus Adolphus College.
