The mission of the Department of Mass Communications is to foster the public good by advancing socially responsible mass communication through education, research and service. The department strives to prepare students for careers as ethical and responsible public communicators, competent in such fields as news, public relations and media studies. The program enables students to:

- I. have knowledge of the purpose and functions of the mass media/mass communications industry. Students should be able to:
 - demonstrate an understanding of the role and effects of American media.
 - demonstrate an understanding of racial, gender, cultural, socio-economic and political diversity issues, and their connections to media.
- II. possess the skills to gather, assess and organize information and to compile that information in a clear, concise, balanced and ethical way. Students should be able to:
 - write clearly and concisely, in a style appropriate for the profession, audience and purpose served.
 - work ethically to serve the public interest through pursuit of truth and accuracy.
 - conduct and analyze research appropriate to the profession.
- III. develop awareness of their roles in the mass communications discipline as ethical and responsible communicators, and apply their practical skills in professional work in the mass communications area of their choosing. Students should be able to:
 - understand and apply the principles of the First Amendment.
 - critically evaluate their own work and that of others for appropriate spelling, punctuation and grammar.
 - critically evaluate their work and that of others for accuracy and balance.

Admission to Major is granted by the department. Contact the department for application procedures.

Proficiency in English grammar, spelling, composition and keyboarding is essential for admission to the major. A diagnostic test in English usage is required to determine such proficiency. The department requires that students complete with a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or better these courses (or their equivalents): ENG 101 and MASS 110. Overall GPA will also be considered in determining admission status. Students not meeting minimum requirements may petition the faculty in writing to seek admission.

No student entering the mass communications program may take courses beyond MASS 110 unless he/she has met the stated requirements. Students seeking entry into the department's major must present evidence of their satisfactory fulfillment of these requirements.

In preparation for undertaking a major in mass communications, students should consider taking these courses (or their equivalents): ECON 100, GEOG 103, ETHN 100, POL 371, PSYC 101, SOC 150 and SOC 101.

POLICIES/INFORMATION

GPA Policy. Majors must earn a cumulative GPA of 2.5 or better in all mass communications coursework, in addition to the 2.0 overall GPA required by the University for graduation.

Refer to the College regarding required advising for students on academic probation.

P/N Grading Policy. Mass communications majors are required to take department courses for a letter grade, except for MASS 498, which must be taken P/N.

Transfer Credit. The department accepts no more than 13 credits from other colleges and universities as transfer credits to be applied toward the major. They must be taken in courses that match or are the equivalent of courses that are either offered by the department or allowed by it for elective credit as shown in the areas of concentration.

Internships. Opportunities for mass communications internships exist on and off campus for junior and senior majors who want to work in professional settings. The internship must be done under professional supervision and is taken only after the student has (1) completed all prerequisite courses in his/her option area; (2) submitted a department internship contract signed by the student, the student's internship supervisor and the department chair.

Filing a Program. By the end of the sophomore year the student, through individual consultation with a department adviser, should complete and file with the department a proposed program.

The department recommends that students develop programs of study that are complementary to their major in mass communications. Students concentrating in journalism are encouraged to minor in courses in liberal arts, such as art, English, literature, modern language, history, humanities, philosophy or political science. Students concentrating in public relations are encouraged to minor in courses in business administration, art, marketing, English, psychology, sociology or speech.

Communication Facilities. In addition to fully equipped modern computerized classrooms, the Department of Mass Communications has access to a broad range of on-campus facilities that provide students practical experience. Students majoring in mass communications may contribute to producing a student-oriented campus newspaper, The Reporter, a campus literary magazine and programming for KMSU-FM radio.

Counseling and Guidance. The key to the department's selective approach to mass communications education is its counseling and guidance program. Students are encouraged to choose a department adviser. Working closely with this faculty person, students develop academic programs that relate to their needs, interests and career aspirations.
